'Baptism of Fire: Genesis of the Dragon' is the second installment of the 'Legendary Souls' series. Play as the small characters whose destinies are shaped by the choice of a visionary leader who has only one goal in mind: world domination. Help the heroes of the Legendary Souls Series fight against a vast evil to save their world! See the source link for info about the game, released on win32 too I found the right way to debug my problem using this post How to enable logging in wxWidgets 2.8 \(Classic\)? wxtoolbridge -s I am using wxtoolbridge from now on, but it uses only X11.

A: I have found the solution. After a few seconds of window running, usually none of the items on the taskbar showed. So I thought there is some error messages in log or something. When I opened system.log, I found this message at the end of log:
[INFO 2015-03-24 05:42:12] "C:\Users\User_name\AppData\Local\Temp\wxWidget2.8\wxWidgets-2.8\wx\shlib\lib\wxtoolbridge.cpp" 136 Debug: wxWidgets-2.8: wxtoolbridge-win32: -s output to "D:\MinGW\System\Log\wxWidgets-2.8-debug.log"
So wxtoolbridge is the cause of this problem. As I post before, wxWidgets 2.8 has changed from using Win32 to WINNT. When using wxtoolbridge with Win32 in classic mode, it uses wxtoolbridge-win32 to get the wxtoolbridge command-line arguments. When the change happened, this wxtoolbridge-win32 has been changed into wxtoolbridge-win64, which only creates a wxtoolbridge.exe. Solution: Start up from an old version of wxtoolbridge-win32 which matches to WINNT. Set your wxWidgets to use this version. `sudo apt-get install wxtoolbridge-win32=2.8-2` Source (twice): Link 1 Link 2 Q: Database migration causes SQLiteException:
