This conversation had all occurred prior to trial and Lewis was never warned by the court of the possibility of impeachment with extrinsic evidence of a prejudicial nature. During the trial no attempt was made by the state to show up Lewis' crime record. Under these circumstances, appellant's conviction cannot stand. Gordon v. United States, 127 U.S.App.D.C. 343, 383 F.2d 936 (1967). 29 in the event that the situation does not change, appellant states that he also desires an evidentiary hearing on the matter of ineffectiveness of counsel. The district court denied the hearing, stating that the record was sufficient to make a determination on the issue and that to hold such a hearing would be to unnecessarily burden the court. This determination was not an abuse of the district court's discretion. We have previously held that "to grant appellant's motion (for evidentiary hearing), on the basis of this record, would serve no useful purpose." We now make that determination for all cases in which the issue of ineffectiveness of counsel is raised. See Townsend v. Sain, 372 U.S. 293, 83 S.Ct. 745, 9 L.Ed.2d 770 (1963). We believe that

Field of the Invention This invention relates to a charge control material for electrophotographic photoreceptors, a photoreceptor, and a process cartridge and an electrophotographic apparatus using the photoreceptor. b. Description of the Related Art Electrophotographic photoreceptors include ones having inorganic photosensitive layers containing inorganic materials such as selenium, cadmium sulfide, zinc oxide, and the like. Further, there is an electrophotographic photoreceptor using, as a photosensitive layer, a polymeric photosensitive layer comprising a low-molecular weight charge control material dispersed in a binder resin. The former are advantageous in that they produce images of high quality since they are organic photoreceptors, but have the disadvantages of being expensive, insufficient in durability due to the abrasion of the surface of the photosensitive layer, and the like. On the other hand, the latter have advantages such as good durability, good productivity, and the like since they are inexpensive and superior in stability, but have the disadvantages of having low sensitivity and producing images of low quality. Thus, there has been used an electrophotographic photoreceptor using, as a photosensitive layer, a charge generating material having high sensitivity and excellent durability, which makes it possible to obtain images of high quality and excellent durability. As for such a charge generating material, there are conventionally known inorganic and organic charge generating materials. As for the inorganic charge generating material, as can be seen from Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 51-133527, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 51-133526, and Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 51-133525, there are known a charge generating material containing selenium as an A-site element, a charge generating material containing a metal belonging to the groups IB, IIB, and IIIB of the Periodic Table, and a material containing a metal belonging to the groups IB, IIB, and IIIB of the Periodic Table and a nitride of selenium. However, these inorganic charge generating materials have disadvantages in that they have problems in that they are insufficient in sensitivity, they are poor in electrostatic resistance and wear resistance, and they are high e79caf774b

Altered hepatic disposition of bupivacaine and its metabolite 2-pyrrolidone in the presence of chlorpromazine or cimetidine. Six healthy volunteers were given 10 ml of a 0.5% bupivacaine hydrochloride solution intravenously. Plasma concentrations of bupivacaine and its metabolite 2-pyrrolidone were determined over a 6-hr period. In these subjects, plasma concentration of 2-pyrrolidone exceeded that of bupivacaine during the first hour following the end of bupivacaine infusion. For the next hour, the reverse occurred. The total clearance of bupivacaine decreased from 0.55 to 0.45 L/hr/m2, and the distribution volume increased from 0.38 to 0.53 L/m2. The changes in plasma concentrations of bupivacaine were significantly correlated with changes in total plasma clearance, but not with the changes in distribution volume. Plasma levels of 2-pyrrolidone remained substantially below those of bupivacaine. Total plasma clearance of 2-pyrrolidone also decreased from 0.14 to 0.11 L/hr/m2, and the distribution volume increased from 0.15 to 0.26
