Friday, March 11, 2012 Last weekend the Netherlands Film Festival unveiled a new series of slideshows presenting a selection of their recently restored prints for archive houses and collectors around the world. Two of the featured series are a selection of the Cinema Italiana archive and the magnificent Yugoslav films catalogue (the latter we were privileged to witness, thanks to the Museum's sister department, the Cinematheque). Our series was hand picked by Reichen Lehmkuhl, who picked out ten titles from our previously screened Italian classics, some of which will be shown on the festival's closing night (April 18), when she will present a talk on this work alongside Harri Koskinen and Nina Resler of the Museum of Modern Art, NY. Each morning during the festival, visitors to the Florence division of the museum were treated to a free screening of one of these restored prints (which can be viewed in the museum's art galleries, via the Cinematografo and Europeana websites), accompanied by an informative discussion. For more details on the festival, visit www.nlfilmfestival.nl/nl/en and check out our newly restored film trailers on our Youtube channel, available for all to enjoy: Thursday, March 10, 2012 The Academy Museum of Motion Pictures has announced the full slate of special events and programming plans for the 77th Annual Academy Awards, the most high-profile film event of the year.
